FROM OUR
ART LEAGUE PRESIDENT

An invitation to touch the future

Along with many others, I love this organization and believe in its mission. To ensure that future generations will have significant local access to the visual, written, and performing arts, some of us have made the Art League of Ocean City a part of our estate or retirement planning.

We invite you to join us as Legacy pARTners, and to extend your influence on the arts beyond your lifetime.

There are many ways to do so. As in my case, you can make the Art League the full or partial beneficiary of a life insurance policy you might no longer really need. Others have attached the Art League to a stock fund, made a specific bequest in their wills, or have designated a percentage of their remaining estate after final expenses and family members have been taken care of. There are ways that tax benefits can minimize the personal cost of a major gift, and others that can allow you to fulfill your philanthropic goals while providing lifetime benefits to you and your family. Along with your attorney or financial advisor, our knowledgeable staff can help you set up a mechanism that works for you.

Legacy pARTners are added to our Wall of Honor at the Ocean City Center for the Arts, and your generosity is recognized at special events, on our website, and in our publications, e-mail marketing, and Facebook page.

Everyone wants to leave a lasting mark in the community, and everyone wants to be remembered. As a Legacy pARTner, your name will live on as a supporter who believes in the power of art to transform lives.

The goal isn't to live forever. The goal is to create something that will.

MARGE BRADACH
ARTISAN

"Curiosities and Artifacts: Taxonomies of Form" is an exhibition that explores various interpretations of natural light phenomenon and suggests underlying organizations of invented abstract objects. Inspired in part by scientific illustrations from the 18th and 19th century, this work envisions the artist as a scientist or archaeologist collecting specimens from the imagined world rather than the natural one.

Building a community of creatives

Lately I have been seeing the word “creatives” used as a noun to describe people involved in the arts. Whether it is visual arts, music, theater, literary, or even culinary arts, according to Wikipedia, creativity is a phenomenon whereby something new and somehow valuable is formed. This innovation is what keeps society growing.

Our mission at the Art League is to promote the creative arts in the community, and we do that through our programs, like our recent OC Film Festival, or collaborative exhibits like Shared Visions that paired artists and writers from the Ocean City Library writers group.

You don't have to be an artist per se to be a creative. It is a process of self expression and self actualization. Being open to trying something new, learning and interacting with other creatives, and applying creativity in your life makes you a creative.

This Spring look for more ways to be “a creative” at the Ocean City Center for the Arts. Attend one of our new monthly Lunch & Learn sessions. Join us on a bus trip to the Baltimore Museum of Art on April 15. Bring your friends to a free First Friday opening reception. Take one of our many art classes in a medium that you haven't tried. Or build your skills in an advanced workshop.

There will be opportunities to explore and learn new topics with our 2020 Fellow for Contemporary Art and Community Engagement, John Mosher, and a chance to gather with others who celebrate the arts, along with locally-sourced food, beer and wine at The Big Get-Together on May 19.

By taking part in the activities of the Art League of Ocean City, you are helping to build a community of creatives, who continue to inspire and grow together.

Meet John Mosher, 2020 fellow

I am excited to join the Art League of Ocean City as the Orem and Harriet Robinson Fellow for Contemporary Art and Community Engagement. In addition to mounting an exhibition of my own work in April, I am planning a series of lectures during the summer on topics that include contemporary color and assemblage. Later in the summer, I am planning a bus trip to the Salisbury University galleries to visit two exhibitions of contemporary art – one of which I curated. In addition, I plan on doing a workshop on collage techniques, as well as several "pop-up" shows in Ocean City and Berlin involving art and sound.
