

It's not the same, but it's The Next Fest Thing

The Art League talks with B.L. Strang-Moya, OC Film Festival Director, about what's up for 2021.

Will there be a 5th Annual OC Film Festival in 2021, and how is it adapting to the new normal?

The OC Film Fest will go virtual from March 4 -7. We are also planning a hybrid program that would include drive-in events at a later date. Adapting to the pandemic has been truly humbling as we reflect on what we've accomplished as a film festival and how we've been able to continually engage the community virtually. Moving our events online has surprisingly enabled us to branch out to more filmmakers and more audiences.

What are dates, and how will the audience view the films?

Set dates are March 4-7, 2021, but it's possible we will extend the dates and add future events. The audience will view the films on Eventive, a proven easy-to-use, high-quality streaming service that specializes in small film festivals like ours.

About how many films do you expect to show, and what are some of the categories?

We will be featuring approximately 100 films including feature films, documentaries, aquatic/environmental films, horror, comedy, and feel-good short films plus specially invited films.

Can you give us a teaser as to some of the films you're excited about for this year?

We will be featuring Eric Walter's My Amityville Horror in anticipation of his upcoming feature Dark Side of the Mountain. Walter grew up in Salisbury, worked at WBOC, and now lives in Los Angeles. He is an acclaimed filmmaker and proud Easternshoreman whom we are excited to offer a homecoming. I'm also enthused by our environmental/aquatic shorts that will resonate with our hometown viewers.

We are featuring Maryland talent in our horror block, and it's one of our stronger horror showcases ever, especially for those who are interested in practical visual effects.

Obviously, we'll miss coming together to celebrate the art of film. But are there advantages to watching films from home?

Viewers can watch on their own time and see all the films in the festival, which has not been possible in the past. Every seat is the best seat in the house! Plus you can watch in your PJs, in the middle of the night, or with your own pod of friends and family.

Are you planning any Film Festival watch parties and how will they work?

We will conduct live Q&A sessions and panel discussions throughout the event as well as watch parties, most likely on Eventive, where folks can gather to discuss the films. We will also strive to incorporate as much live interaction with the filmmakers as possible.

There was talk of showing films in a drive-in setting, but March is not an ideal time for that. What's down the road in 2021 after March for the Film Festival?

We are anticipating one or more drive-in events in late spring or early summer. If and when we do this, we will be featuring highlights of our virtual festival and essentially recreate it as an in-person function made for drive-in.

Is there a place we can sign up or watch for more information on the Festival as it becomes available?

SPECIAL COVID-19 MESSAGE AND STAGGERED WINTER EXHIBITS

To give our December artists ample exhibition time and to promote safety, the Art League will stagger early 2021 art openings and art dropoffs, including January and February. Please see the new dates in the date circles attached to each event. Thank you for your understanding, and we hope to get back to our regular schedule soon.

OPENING JANUARY 17

MEMBERS GROUP SHOW

In conjunction with the Town of Ocean City's Winter Wellness program, the Art League presents Hope & Healing. Through times of challenge, art can be an act of hope and healing. For artists, the creative process can be meditative, cathartic, or illuminating. As a viewer, art can bring feelings of comfort and connection. These exhibits will lift the spirits with joy and positivity. The Hope & Healing exhibit is in-person at the Arts Center continuing through February 27.

A NEW YEAR OF HOPE AND HEALING

As 2021 unfolds, we are focused on a new year of hope and healing. The stresses of the past year have been so profound as we found ourselves struggling to merely function on a day to day basis, both on a personal basis and as an organization.

the community gave me and all of us at the Art League purpose and a reason to forge on.

The support offered by so many of our members and donors was what kept us all going. Your notes, calls, and donations helped to sustain us, and we hope that by keeping the arts alive, we have helped to sustain you as well.

For myself, and so many of our members, my only solace was my art. With so much of my life out of control, the only thing I could control was the paper or canvas in front of me. Making art gave me a way to express the fear I felt, and seek comfort in creating beauty. Being able to bring art to Let us take the next few months to heal from the trauma of the pandemic, and turn inward to explore ourselves through art. We have planned a full schedule dedicated to winter wellness as a theme, including an exhibit dedicated to hope and healing, an online exhibit about love, and the shared visions of artists and writers. Our classes include yoga, journaling, and creative activities to inspire and promote healing. There are plenty of online options for those who want to participate in classes virtually, and also chances for you to get out and attend in-person with masks and social distancing in small settings. Now is the time to try something new, reach into yourselves and find your artistic voice and authentic style.

We hope you find solace in the natural beauty of our coastal community this winter, and that we bring you hope and healing with our programs. Looking forward to a renewal of mind, body and spirit in the upcoming year.

The Goldilocks Zone: too hot, too cold, or ...

Torrential rain rips through our glob of a planet, leaves the world covered in a sea of murky brown.

Devastating floods complicate our Mother Earth puzzle, yet we ignore the catastrophic calamity
as it breaks the globe apart.

Nature - with our guidance - pushes, pulls, damages and separates pieces of our ancient orb.

We attempt to reconstruct our portion of home terrain, in the hope Goddess Gaia's magnetic core will unite its crushed, ruptured, separated fragments together again ...
Have we learned nothing from poor old Humpty Dumpty's fractured experience?

Spikes in temperature, expand as Coronavirus pandemic causes illness, destruction ... death.

Still and slowly the red-warming belt tightens, shifts in sustainability and - ultimately - threatens to snap!

Will our Earth remain a gorgeous ornament;
an unbelievable surprise; an unexpected gift
- or become a ticking-time-bomb which shines as Sherlock's Final Problem?

This crisis must track its Midnight Actions ... or else
... end in miserable collapse. Only the survivors will know
... for sure. Unlike us, will they divulge the TRUTH?

SO GLAD FOR 2021

2020 was a Salvador Dali kind of year. Surreal to say the least. The melting clocks of The Persistence of Memory and its subsequent Disintegrations, the abject horror of The Face of War, and the utter confusion of Soft Construction with Boiled Beans all come to mind as I think of the crisis and conflict, the separation, and loss of loved ones we have endured. At the same time, the inner peace of The Meditative Rose and the call to higher aspiration in The Sacrament of the Last Supper inspire hope, and a browse through Dali's catalog shows us that joy, wonder, and fun can be found even in the midst of turmoil.

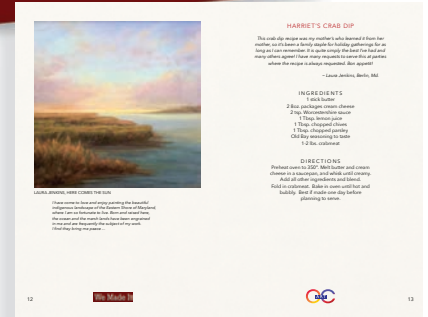

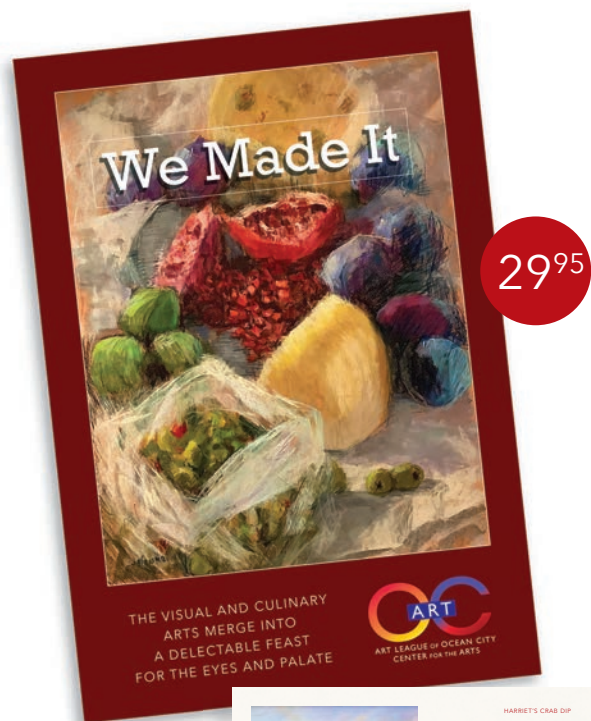

Whether getting our hands dirty or interacting with the work of others, art informs our thoughts, focuses our attention, inspires our dreams, and helps us to make sense of a chaotic world. Art keeps us going in periods of isolation and depression. It carries us to a universe of fantasy and yet keeps us anchored in what is real.

The drive to create and to share is alive at the Ocean City Center for the Arts. We can be proud of what we have accomplished in this difficult time. It seemed as if the Covid crisis brought out the best in our local artists, even the kids. Our monthly exhibits, in person and online, demonstrated an amazing level of artistic growth in our community, as if circumstance had intensified our perception, focus, and artistic vision. It brought out the best from our staff and volunteers as well. They have risen to the challenge presented by this new reality, and against all obstacles have advanced our mission, vision, and core values. Thanks to everyone's dedication and commitment, we have turned this pandemic into an opportunity for growth and greater service.

Careful vigilance will be required during the early part of the year, with the hope that things will begin to relax in the summertime. Yet as this newsletter demonstrates, there is plenty going on. You can visit our galleries without worry about crowded conditions. There are classes and special events to keep your creative juices flowing, plus lots of activities to keep kids occupied and involved. And don't forget to keep your calendar clear so you can binge-watch our 5th Annual Ocean City Film Festival in March. It's going to be great. Without a doubt, 2021 will prove to be our finest year ever.

We Made It

We've cooked up something delicious for your bookshelf

"We Made It" is 132 glorious pages of original art, cherished family recipes, and stories from the artists who shared them. It's a book where the visual and culinary arts merge into a delectable feast for the eyes and palate. And we're selling these as a fundraiser for the Art League for $29.95.

Our beautiful new book is professionally printed with full color pages and a glossy cover. You'll discover unique recipes handed down from generations and the sweet family stories behind them. The 60 artists also shared a piece of their beautiful original art, and shared what inspired them to create it.

More hugs, please, in 2021

Our famous hugging heART cheered so many during 2020.

You made them into school and family art projects, hung them in your windows to cheer your neighbors, sent them as thanks to the caregivers at Atlantic General Hospital, and made them into virtual hugs on social media. We need more hugs during this winter! Here's how:

1. Do your creative art thing with this blank hugging heART.
2. Put it in your window or door to cheer your neighbors.
3. Write a hopeful message and mail it to your hospital or doctor.
4. Take a photo and send it to us by e-mail - megan@artleagueofoceancity.org. We'll post and exhibit. (Need an extra heART? Download one from our website.)

Thank you from the bottom of our heARTS!
