Do you know a SHERo?

We are seeking nominations for the 4th Annual SHERo Awards 2021, honoring Delmarva women who have shown courage in facing adversity and turned that around into something positive. Nomination deadline is Oct. 8, 4 p.m. and nomination forms are available on our website.

Candidates for the SHERo Awards must be 18 years or older and residents of Delmarva, but they do not have to be related to the arts. Past SHERos have included women who are mothers, teachers, volunteers, community organizers, caregivers, nurturers, and business leaders. Some have faced health challenges or worked three jobs to support their families. Some have volunteered their time and talents or championed a worthy cause.

"We all know someone who is a SHERo. We are asking you to help us find them," Rina Thaler, executive director of the Art League, said. "By sharing the stories of women who do so much, we hope to inspire others. And we want to simply acknowledge everything that women do in their lives that often goes unnoticed."

Thaler emphasized the SHERo Awards are not a competition. "All SHERos who are nominated will be recognized at our awards ceremony on Friday, Oct. 29," she said.

We will present the SHERo Awards free in-person at the Arts Center on Friday, Oct. 29, 5-7 p.m. All are welcome.

Identity is made up of many factors – gender, sexuality, race, ethnicity, religion, class – each influencing how we understand ourselves, express who we are, and relate to those around us.

The show explores the theme of identity to promote self-acceptance and acceptance of others.

The artists who will share what identity means to them include Stephanie Lael Barrick, Kim Bemis, Jesse Halpern, Jinchul Kim, Kacie Neeb, Jinsoon Oh, Deborah Rolig, Emmanuel Porquin and Halie Torris. The Galleria will host an open group show featuring members of the Art League and local artists judged by Deborah Rolig and Dee Gray.

BEING CREATIVE IN UNCERTAIN TIMES

We had breathed a collective sigh of relief. It finally seemed as if we were getting out of the woods when the pandemic took a turn back into the trees and it became clear we will be living with an altered reality for some time to come.

Fortunately, we have prepared ourselves for this. Our staff and cadre of volunteers have worked diligently and creatively to keep alive our mission to promote artistic expression and our vision to be a regional catalyst in promoting the arts. We have learned to react and adapt, even at a moment's notice, to serve our community.

For sure, we miss the way things used to be. Virtual events are not the same as face-to-face, and it's a disappointment, for example, that the "Artrageous" performance had to be postponed once again, and that "Originals Only" and the monthly Film Festival nights remain online instead of in-person.

That being said, there is much to be thankful for. Under prudent guidelines, our galleries remain open, classes have resumed, Free Family Art Days, and other traditions are back, as are First Friday openings at the Arts Center and two satellite locations. Outdoor happenings like Plein Air and ArtX have been highly successful. Our outreach to the community has brought people together and brought comfort and fulfillment to many. We are growing, and we are making a difference.

The challenge spurs us on to greater effort. We make an important contribution to the quality of life in this region, and we will never give up. Most encouraging has been the support we receive – hands-on, in-kind, and financial – from our members, supporters and friends. It makes everything happen.

We hope you will join us in remembering the Art League of Ocean City during this season of giving. You can make us part of your Giving Tuesday contribution at ShoreGivesMore.org. You can respond generously to our Annual Fund appeal. You can give directly, in person at the Arts Center or through our website at ArtLeagueofOceanCity.org. You can contact our Executive Director to discuss a special donation, memorial, or legacy gift.

It is immensely satisfying to be part of this great effort, and we are sincerely grateful for your participation and support.

MAKING ART FUN & ACCESSIBLE

As we fall into autumn, I wanted to take a moment to reflect on what was the busiest and most challenging summer we have experienced in the nine years we have been in the "new" building.

Over five weeks, we welcomed nearly 200 children to our art adventure camp. Never before have we had such a demand for camp, and we turned away almost as many campers as we accommodated. The campers were so happy to be able express themselves and meet new friends after a year of limited socialization. Special visits from local authors, illustrators, and a special sculpture project with Professor Bill Wolff of Salisbury University (our 2021 Orem & Harriet Robinson Fellow for Contemporary Art and Community Engagement) made it memorable. We are grateful to the volunteers, many first-timers, who turned out to help, and the excellent teachers and counselors brought to us by a grant from the Donnie Williams foundation.

We then welcomed 50 artists to our annual Artist Paint OC Plein Air event. The artists painted more than 200 works, each capturing a moment in time, and took home $5,500 in prizes, including a $2,500 first prize by the Peter Glenville Foundation. We sold 46 works of art for more than $20,000 during the event.

The next weekend, we were at Art X at Northside Park. A collaboration of the Town of Ocean City and the Art League, thousands of people turned out despite the weather. We offered hands-on workshops in pour painting, wine glass painting, shell mosaics, fish stamping, tie dye T-shirts, chalk art, youth plein air, and geocaching, plus demonstrations, screenings of films from our OC Film Festival, a quick paint event, and beer and wine sales.

A six-session summer outreach program at Buckingham Elementary led by artist Carol Rydel allowed the children to participate in an art enrichment program. A record number of students took classes in pottery and other mediums here at the Arts Center in July and August. The Art League conducted 94 classes - both in-person and online - with 713 students attending.

We reached our goal of 1,100 members (bringing us back to pre-Covid levels) with our summer membership drive, thanks to the donation of the limited edition, hand-signed Patrick Henry prints that new and renewing members received. (We have a limited number of these still available and will end the membership drive when they are gone.)

I want to commend our team - staff, board members, instructors, and volunteers -- who worked diligently to put on the events this summer, and thank all who participated in our classes, purchased artwork, or supported us in any way.

Next up is the Virtual Sand Castle Home Tour Oct. 1-31. The tour has been our traditional sustaining fundraiser, and this year it will also raise funds for 12 other nonprofits. Please participate by purchasing an access pass at www.SandCastleHomeTour.com, and selecting a charity to support at checkout. As a bonus to tourtakers, a special Holiday Home Tour will air beginning Nov. 1. Viewers will enjoy tips on decorating and recipes to celebrate holiday traditions.

Look for some major workshops this fall with lots of art classes for all levels and ages, and a special gallery wide multi-media exhibition that explores identity and embraces self-acceptance.

As a nonprofit community arts organization, we strive to fulfill our mission of making the creative arts accessible to all, including children, professional artists, and those who just want to explore their creative side. However, it cannot be stated enough that we could not do it without your support. Please consider contributing to our annual year-end campaign that allows us to bring purpose and meaning to life through art.

Thank you and have a healthy and creative fall.
